Witnesses in Chinese Smuggling Case, Give Plain Testimony.

When the hearing of the case of the government against Mar Chew, whom it is trying to remove to New Mexico for trial on the charge of conspiring to smuggle Chimamen into the United States, was called by United States commission-er George B. Oliver Tuesday morning, George M. Scott, who is under indict-ment in New Mexico, in connection with Mar Chew and others, on the charge of Chinese sanuggling, was on the stand.

Chinese shugging, was on the stand.

He testified that Yee Yit had paid money for the transportation of eight Chinamen to Chicago, but the witness would not say that the money came from Mar Chew. He said that Mar had said that Yit was his agent. Scott, who was at the time of the alleged conspiracy a brakeman on the Southwestern, admitted that he had been assured an immunity bath for testifying against the others. He said that he had never smug-led any Chinamen into the United States and that he only agreed to carry them to Chicago, after they were put on his train. During his testimony Scott gave an original definition of a railroad brakemin as compared to a conductor. "A brakeman does all of the work," he said. "and the conductor runs the train, does the heavy thinking and draws the pay." The defence objected to the govern-ment's questioning the witness about a conversation with Lon Miller, a negro train porter convicted at Las Cruces, and the witness was excused while the attorneys sought decisions. Lon Miller told of carrying Chinamen from White's Spur, where they were delivered by a Mexican named Felippe, and said that Mar Chew had said that Yee Git would attend to bringing the China-men across the river. He said he had
